The 1961 Angelican
is respectfully dedicated to the principal of Our Lady of the Angels Academy,
Sister Mary Laurette, C.S.S.F.,
who through her loving SERVICE has shown us how to serve lovingly;
who through her pursuit of knowledge
has taught us to value SCHOLARSHIP;
who through her exemplary LEADERSHIP has demonstrated the importance of independent thought;
who through her own CHARACTER
has instilled in us the hunger for justice.

Forgetting self,
they heard and answered
the call of Christ to serve.
When we met them,
we knew them only as our faculty.
Theirs was the task
of bringing the inexperience of youth
to young maturity.
It was a task
filled with love and sacrifice.
We did not realize this at first.
But now,
as we approach a new beginning,
we know them as friends.

We light the candle
of SERVICE.

His Holiness,
POPE JOHN XXIII

"Behold, I am among you
as one who serves,"
is the criterion
for those who have attained greatness.
We are aware of the sacrifice
a standard such as this requires.

His Excellency,
Most Reverend
HENRY J. O'BRIEN, D.D.
Archbishop of Hartford

We cannot fully realize this,
but it is
with admiration
and affection
that we honor those who have served so well.

With a cheerful smile and an able willingness, Rev. Michael Gryglak, our Father Chaplain, provides Angelites with spiritual service. First Friday devotions, Third Order blessings, and votive Masses are but a few of the occasions upon which we avail ourselves of his help.

Reassuring and capable, Miss Moina Julian renders medical aid and keeps the health records of O.L.A. up to date. Eye checkups, hearing tests, and valuable advice are given with competent courtesy.

"Where is Mr. Hoffman?" is a familiar call on O.L.A. corridors. Bus driver, electrician, plumber, a regular "fix-it man", his services are invaluable.

They give generously of their time and services.

Student-faculty bonds extend beyond the classroom. Not content with being merely instructors, our teachers also act as advisers, friends, and guides.

The road to knowledge and realization
leads through scholarship.
Those who have gone before us leave us the magnificent heritage of the thought and endeavor that have built up
the wisdom of the centuries.
The largesse within the grasp of inquiring minds
staggers us.
At the same time,
it challenges us
to contribute to the body
of that wisdom;
to light another candle.

We light the candle
of SCHOLARSHIP.

Sister Mary Laurette, C.S.S.F.

Come Holy Ghost! This theme engages Junior Religion students, counterclockwise, Dolores Kiejko, Ann Pound, Colette Poirier, Frances Kruzel, Jacqueline Kozanowski, and Sylvia Skarbek, in purposeful activities.

Sophomores, Joan Kement, Corolyn Joskolko, Sandro Kusiak, Kathleen Huebner, Suzanne Lavoie, Joan Mozur, Regina Lukasik, and Moryanne Jurgielewicz, look on as Nancy Pelkey traces the journeys of Christ during His first years of public teaching in Galilee, Judea, and Samorio.

Freshmen, standing, Mary Rose Krusiewski and Elaine Palek; seated, Roberta Kennedy, Vivian Pierce, Margaret McKenna, Carol Pazniak, Susan Poharski, Patricia Paterwic, Caralanne Needham, and Nancy Kuzara, find their place in today's world through Catholic Action.

The cornerstone of our scholastic endeavors is RELIGION.

Religion helps to solve important moral questions. Discovering this are Seniors Beverly Slifkus, Rosemarie Spanza, Patricia Patter, Sharon Bergh, and Ruth Smith. Sister Laurette looks on with interest.

A study of world situations and customs is made by World History students, standing, Florinda Santos, Suzanne Krochalis, Frances Galeotti, Maryanne Sylvester, and Mary Anne Stoker; also, Andrea Furman, Bonnie Bergh, Sondro Dec, and Susan Child.

Developing their historical vocabulary during a session in Developmental Reading are: Moryonn Wroblewski, Stasia Trymbulak, Carolyn Davis, Sondra Peters, Donna De Maria, and Ann Amodeo.

We relive the past,
witness the present,
and contemplate the future

Sister Mary Casimere, C.S.S.F.

An active concern about the rights of American citizens to select their next president is registered by these Problems of American Democracy students; standing, Paula Burzenski, Patricia Zabiski, Patricia Laing, Maryanne Maciolek; seated, Barbara De Maria and Jeanne Schulte.

Through BUSINESS

we develop

our practical skills . . .

"We did it at last!" exclaims Mary Lou Uzdarwin to Virginia Eaton, Patricia Cassatta, and Patricia Kalmer as they examine the finished copy, a product of their first lesson on the mimeographing machine.

Shorthand is widening its scope, as Sheila Butler, Geraldine Siok, Winifred Kuraitis and Carole Steward have discovered in their perusal of Shorthand text-books and records based on the social encyclicals of Pope Pius XI.

The value of words is the concern of Marion Lamana, Mory Agnes Crowley, Karen McCue and Patricia McKenna as they increase their business vocabularies.

... and prepare to earn our living in a competitive world.

Cynthia Polek gladly exhibits her finished art work to Eileen Quinn and Pamela Rorus. Mory Quaglini busily adds finishing touches to her assignment.

Poula Coolen, Pierrette Courtemanche, and Judy Guay try solving complex bookkeeping problems while Judith Balsewicz and Patricia Buckley diligently attempt the same problem in their little corner of the world.

Is it "he" or "I"? Dione Pederzoli points to a shorthand symbol, while keeping students, back row, Suellen Pendleton, Marion Quaglioroli; first row, Elaine Poradis, Kathleen Kowol, and Janet Lucos, guessing.

These strong figures from The Merchant of Venice come to life through Eileen Ingrohom, Floel Horrington, Constance Tomy, and Donno DiMaso. Enjoying the tableau are Morilyn Mokrycki, Gloria Nasuto, Ann O'Brien, Christine Mooney, Margoret Griffin, and Joon Messenger.

Sister Mary Doloria, C.S.S.F.

Sister Mary Magdalen, C.S.S.F.

Indulging their interest in contemporary literature are: Judith Anneli, Patricia Jones, Victoria Walms, and Carole Strong.

Margaret Williams, Barbara Santanella, Jean Renno, and Corole Smith find the world at their fingertips through the perusal of this wealth of library material.

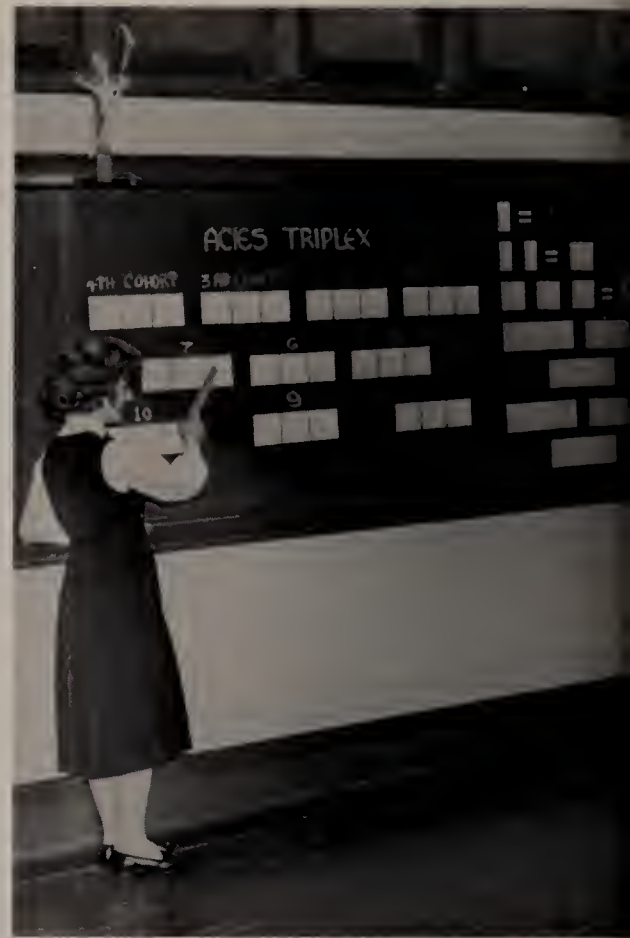

ENGLISH depicts
the variable,
yet never-changing element
of human nature.

A familiar classic comes to life as Linda Carrigan adjusts the television set. Nancy Gullatt, Rita Dowdy, Stasia Hodyl, Ann Marie Crowley, Nancy Kearney, and Koren Fritze anticipate their venture into 18th century France.

The travels of Aeneas are explained, with illustrations, by Carol Markoski with the help of Joyce Jarosz as fellow Vergil students Margaret Cayne, Irene Gospodarek, and Carol Michaud check their references.

A channel of communication with the minds of great Romans is opened for us
through LATIN.

"Est pulchrum," say admiring seniors Cecilia Lukasik, Catherine Bunce and Jeanne Krachalis of the trophy they obtained in the Nationwide A.S.P.L. Latin contest.

The formation of a Roman legion in a bottle line is explained by Christine Przybycien, as Geraldine Scovotto points out makeup of the army units to Joanne Kaminski, Mary Jonkowski, Mary DiSciacca, Anno Lichtonski, Mary Ann Markowski, and Linda Kolonoski.

Sister Mary Amabilis, C.S.S.F.

In the opinions of Elizabeth Mielnikiewicz, Jane Doyle, Victoria Skower, Louise Messier, Sylvio Nicolae, Nancy Znamierowski, Shirley Alexandrowicz, Jone Chickosky, Joan Montovani, Ann Brown, Jo Ann Polek, and Joon Pohorylo, Latin does indeed live today.

Sister Mary Evelyn, C.S.S.F.

Our vistas
of international understanding
are broadened
through the medium
of MODERN LANGUAGES.

The practical study of the Polish language is the aim of these seniors: Ellen Rousseau, Madeline Jaksina, Patricia Iagrosso, and Cecilia Lukasik.

Polish culture through pictures is a matter of lively interest to freshmen Ann Chagnon, Anne Adamczyk, Geroldine Kogut, Barbara Malino, Louise Skarbek, Sylvia Lukasik, Frances Roymond, Dorothy Hudok, Claire Korzeniewsko, and Patricia Dunn.

Marie Apostolico, Lorraine Tabaka, Barbara Zieminski, Kathleen Mullen, and Donna Hopkins listen attentively as Kathryn Gabriel points out the importance of mastering the fundamentals of French grammar, vocabulary, verbs, idioms, and reading.

The study of

Gloria Dymek does prove that side-angle-side equals side-angle-side to Sheila Handley, while Loretta Cyranowski guides Joanne Gorman, Rosemarie Dell Aquilla, Eileen Colgan, Harriet Derylak, and Geraldine Bugai to the same conclusion.

"Girls, your mistake is in your calculation, not in your thinking," explains Sister Joannette to Math IV students Gail Troie, Kathleen DiMaso, Patricia Prekop, and Donna Lee Czapiga.

Freshmen, Cynthia Keorney and Christine Figura, knowledgeably explain the principles of elementary algebra to their classmates, Lynn Thompsan, Theresa Muraski, Helen Godbois, Sondra Kracunas, Carol Cynoski, Carol Lidak, Joan Piskala, and Judith Hunt.

SCIENCE aids
in our appreciation of the hidden mysteries
of creation.

Sister Mary Joanette, C.S.S.F.

The new Earth Science course seems to delight these freshmen. Shown examining rock specimens are: seated, Carol Kropp, Dianne Ostendorf, Pamela Tevald, and Katherine Krzys; standing, Lee Houle, Marie Siana, Sharon Terry, Lorraine Homblin, Jonice Parakilis, and Francine Oliver.

These Chemistry students, Patricia Furman, Carole Rzasa, Mary Ellen Lafond and Thereso Jankowska look on with interest as Sister Leonio gives a demonstration in glass-bending.

Sister Mary Angeline, C.S.S.F.

Sister Angeline captures the interest of enthusiastic biology students, with the exciting world of the microscope. Shown examining moss specimens are: Eileen Renno, Evelyn Yedziniak, Pouline Piechocki, Jone Zawistowski, and Kathleen Stroiney.

This is the only possible formula to use, explains Lucy LaPierre to Jeonne Krochalis, Rosaleen Mazur, and Jacqueline Messier. Physics requires a precise knowledge of formulas.

The more we think
of our eternal destiny,
the more we realize that earthly life is a journey toward something far more significant than this world.

Those who are making this journey
must keep before them
the good example
of previous travelers.

We, the seniors, the previous travelers,
reach for the hands
of our successors
to lead them onward.

We light the candle
of LEADERSHIP . . .

"No point in time is long ago, nor by lapse of time has it grown old."
Our high school days at O.L.A. are over.
We look back at the four years
which have etched their way into our minds and hearts,
and find they have been good years;
we look back at the moments
we have shared, and find that they have deepened
our sense of values.
Time will not erase
these mental photographs—
they are our CLASS HISTORY.

This is a time to remember: to set down

Initiation introduced us to the first

We arrived at O.L.A. with expectant awe. Soon came our rude awakening. Unsuspecting, we were shepherded to the auditorium. Once there, we discovered the dire truth . . . this was our initiation.

Our newly-acquired dignity as Angelites shattered into infinitesimal fragments as the seniors called us on stage to perform ridiculous feats.

Leaving with our hazing requirements, we laughingly vowed to see to it that the poor hapless class of 1965 would undergo even more impossible trials at our hands.

Here we were pitched to a high key of anxiety and hope.
This was our first class night at the Academy.
This was when great effort was recognized,
and great achievement honored.
Remember the squeals of surprise,
the intoxicating applause,
the tears of pride and happiness,
as the award-winners claimed their honors!
One more link of our Academy heritage was forged this night.
We became sophomores . . .
and engaged in our first wild scramble
for the new bows of identification.

"On the first day of Christmas,"
 caroled the sophomores,
 "my true love brought to me, a partridge in a pear tree."
 Twelve days of Christmas, we illustrated.
 "Angels we have heard on high," we sang,
 and two hundred appeared on stage—
 with a Christmas gift of lacy handkerchiefs attached to their skirts.
 Distributed to their new owners,
 they left behind them two hundred candles,
 a chorus of "Merry Christmas,"— and the sophomore committee cleaning up after a successful Christmas program.

We left a part of our lives at O.L.A.

"What kind of a tree are we going to have?"
The question echoed through the room
at class meetings.
The matter was settled for us,
when the nursery men arrived
with a pink dogwood.
Not only did they bring it,
they also planted it.
Undaunted, we thronged about it,
sang our song, and watched our officers
heave the final shovelfuls of dirt.
And, in no time at all,
we had a treeful of pink blossoms
as an enduring memento of the class of 1961.

The quiet days gave us

For a little while

The beginning of our junior year brought us face to face with an ever-present yet seldom realized reality.
Ann Marie McCarthy,
our gentle and unassuming classmate,
accepted death as quietly as she had lived her life.
"For unto Thy faithful, O Lord, life is changed, not taken away."

We wanted our freshmen to look upon us as true sisters to whom they could turn for help and guidance.
Therefore, our little sisters
were not selected by us;
our little sisters selected us.
Each freshman drew a junior's name,
and claimed a big sister of her own.
The relationship was sealed
with a scroll of certification.
Thus we continued
a cherished Academy tradition and made it uniquely our own.

Privileges and duties accompanied our

The handing down of the daisy chain marked the fulfillment

 At last we were officially seniors.
 Afterwards, we gladly bestowed

all in the spirit of thorough good fun.

Our first major project as seniors:
the initiation of the freshmen.
After much careful deliberation
behind closed doors,
our plans were completed.
The too-trusting newcomers were led to the auditorium
"to see some slides of Washington, narrated by Sister Principal."
This seemed too tame a pastime
for the dangerous month of September.
Lo and behold, on an alien slide:
"Surprise! This is your initiation."
Then the fun began.

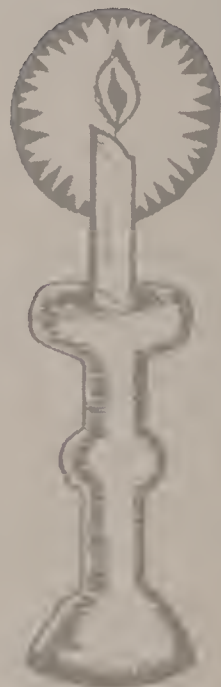

"How rarely in a hundred years
do we open our hearts," said the poet.
Our hearts have been open for the past four years;
open to the strivings, the joys,
the camaraderie of shared experience.
We have taken a full measure of the traditions, the ideals which have built the spirit of O.L.A.
through the years,
and infused it into each moment
of our school life.
We shall have these moments to remember—they are preserved for us in this book.

"Summit of time, here we are."

This is graduation—
the final solemnity.

Our years at O.L.A. are over.

They have been wonderful years,
and we shall always be grateful for them.

Now, the future lies before us.

What we make of it depends on ourselves.

We must resolve always to live up to the ideals of a true Angelite
if we are to find true success and happiness in our future lives.

We must go on,
from the end to a new beginning.

Character is built upon firm foundations:
foundations saturated with principles of self-sacrifice and cooperation.
This we have been taught,
and it is this
we have grown to realize:
an understanding matured
by the daily tasks of an Angelite-work and play, prayer and action,
study and achievement.
Our foundation now nears its completion.
It must be strong and wholesome
for upon it
we shall build our future.
